Juarez. Dec. 10.—Events today in dicated that Ojinaga, sometimes called Presidio Dei Norte, the small Mexican village on the border opposite Presidio, Tex., would probably be the scene of the next important move in the Mexican revolution.

Not Ignored.

Rebel leaders were more than ever convinced that Ojinaga, where the federal troops have concentrated, cannot be ignored by Gen. Francisco Villa, the rebel leader. Within the town are nearly all the federal troops of the north. Their retreat thither avowedly was to obtain money and provisions, because in the interior they had been on the verge of famine and the troops had been without pay. Provisioned and provided will money, the federals would be in a position to renew hostilities.

Would Change Plan.

Should he determine to attack the federals in force, Gen. Villa, now at Chinuahua City, would have to check temporarily his advance southward toward Torreon.

temporariy his advance soluthward toward Torreon.

The rebel forces about Ojinaga are greatly in excess of the number at first reported. It was said that the 3,000 troops which Vilia sent south of Juarez about ten days ago have been detoured eastward and are now on the road to Ojinaga.

May Mutiny.

Possible mutiny of the federals, which was hinted by their calling across the river to the American side that they would desert if attacked, it being relied upon by the rebels.

Murderer of Patrolman Frank Ford Declares He Never Intended to Cause His Death.

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Nelson Sharp died in the electric chair here today for the murder of Patrolman Frank Ford of the Rochester police force, May 18, 1912. The murderer went unaided to his death. Before leaving his cell he made the tollowing statement: "Now the time has come for me to pay for my follies I am ready to meet it. I served in the United States army and navy and It can meet my punishment as a soldier should. I never knew Frank Ford and did not intend to cause his death. I am very sorry for it and for his family and relatives. No one was to blame for it, only drink, and if I dould only bring Mr. Ford to life by giving up my own I would willingly do it a hundred times. I hope this will come to the eyes of his wife and family and that they will not think too bard of me. May it please God to give us both rest."

Vera Cruz, Dec. 10.—A messenger from General Villareal, the rebel commander, reached the American consulate in Tampico last night with the information that four thousand rebels commanded by Generals Villareal real and Castro were approaching the city. The rebel advance guard was taked the constitution of assaulting the city with the least possible delay. He said he had given his followers strict orders to refrain as far as possible from destruction of property and to protect the lives of foreigners, but he feared they would be gravely imperiled in the attack as the consequence of fighting in the streets.

An overwhelming force of rebels threatened to attack Tampico accoming to advices received by wireless this morning from Clarence A. Miller, American consul at that seaport.

JUSTIFIES MEXICAN POLICY OF WILSON

A. E. MATHESON, REPUBLICAN, THINKS COURSE TAKEN IS WISEST.

HUERTA INCOMPETENT

Can Not Even Boast of a DeFacto Government-Lively Discussion at Twillight Club.

That the Mexican policy of President Wilson has been the best yet proposed, that it has had the sanction of international law, that it has been true to the American ideal of higher moral standards in international relationships and institute its order. true to the American ideal of higher moral standards in international relationships and justified litselt by preventing armed intervention and war at the cost of thousands of American lives and millious in money, were the opinions expressed by A. E. Matheson who last night took the affirmative side in a debate on the question. "Resolved, That the Mexican Policy of President Wilson Should be Approved," given before the December meeting of the Twilight club. F. II. Jackman, assigned the negative side of the question, was not able to be present, but his paper was read by Judge Charles Fifield.

"I approve the treatment of so-called President Huerta by President Wilson," sold Mr. Matheson. "I believe that Huerta was treacherous, and that if he was not guilty of the murder of Madero he was guilty of connivance. He has assumed the position of a dictator, but he is not a dictator who can control. In this respect there is a marked difference between him and Porfirio Diaz. Huerta has shown himself weak and dishonest.

"It is true, according to internative and the control of the marked difference."

"It is true, according to internative standard and the control of the marked difference."

"It is true, according to internative standard and control."

"It is true, according to interna-tional law, that one nation does not closely question the means by which any other government obtained control and that it has been the practice to recognize a de facto government. But a de facto government must show that it has control—ability to carry on the usual functions of government. According to this standard Huerta is not entitled to recognition. Complaint has been made that Huerta is just as well entitled to recognition as Yuan Si Kai as president of China, also virtually a dictator. But Yuan has shown himself competent to control, able to keep a firm hand on the reins of government and to establish order. my other government obtained con reins of government and to establish order.

"Even were it proper for Wilson to grant recognition to the Huerta government, according to existing standards it is entirely proper for him to take advanced ground, to set up new standards in its relation to the other American republics.

"The president has done all that could be done to protect American citizens. Our armies are distributed all along the northern boundary and our warships are at every port offering a haven of refuge to those in fear or in danger. It is manifestly imposing a haven of refuge to those in fear or in danger. It is manifestly impossible to afford protection to American people and their property in the interior without armed intervention and invasion, and this would arouse such hostility and antagonism that the Americans there would be in greater danger than ever. Recognition of the revolutionists would have an effect almost as bad.

We should recognize the fact that Wilson, more than anyone else, is in a position to obtain accurate information about conditions in Mexico and not having this information we can not pass fair judgment."

Policy of Weakness.

Wilson's policy is one of weakness, of impractical idealism, according to F. H. Jackman. The president, he believed, was acting under the advice of his secretary of state and doing nothing because he wished to avoid responsibility. His announcements to the Mexican government he characterized as void of effect, words having no weight with Mexican politicians. Huerta should have been recognized. Murder had never been proved against him and he showed himself the best qualified to establish peace. A democratic government such as we know has never existed in Mexico and can not be established for many years to come, is impracti-Mexico and can not be established for many years to come, is impractical at this time. Mexico is so illiterate that a fair election is impossible. Dictatorship is the only possible government and the policy of the United States was bringing it nearer armed intervention every day. It was as if a man should have two burglars in his house and let them proceed with their plunder in the hone that the stronger of the two would make himself master of the situation.

Nation's Honer Involved.

Nation's Honor Involved.

Recognition of the Huerta government would be taken as sanction of treachery, butchery, and murder by the United States, said J. T. Hooper, called upon for an informal talk. Although Vilson's policy had been much criticised, no better had been offered, All others involved the good name of the nation or made intervention necessary. The lives of American men are worth more than all the treasures in Mexico. Those who made investments there made them with their eyes wide open, knowing the risks they ran. American blood should not be spilled to protect their property. Nation's Honor Involved.

Has Imperialistic View.

That Mexico is entitled to the territory it occupies only by courtesy and has never occupied it, and that the United States should take possession at the earliest possible moment, was the opinion expressed by Andrew Gibbors.

Andrew Gibbons.
"If I was a warrior' I would figure that opportunity was knocking at two doors and a window. The United States should go in at once and clean the mess up."

"The Mexicans" said Mr. Gibbons "are the feeble dregs of a decaying race which at its best was hostile to progress and civilization. Mexico is so unstable that it can not guarantee any government a month's lease of power,"

Other Views.

Fred H. Howe, who has spent one winter in Mexico, said that ever since that time he had had no use for the Mexicans. The people are intensely ignorant and superstitious, the latter being true even of the better classes. He thought the only way for the United States to do was to recognize any man that was on top, and that Huerta had as much right to the presidency as any man that ever held the office.

J. J. Cunningham dwelt upon the consequences of intervention which he said could mean nothing less than the country of an energous cost of life. conquest at an enormous cost of life and money. Commercial Interests.

George S. Parker presented some significant facts on the commercial interests in Mexico, obtained from the member of a firm with whom his online in Mexico four-een years. He stated that in the twenty-seven states and the tritiories there are 146 cotton factories employing 32,000 people. 337 tobacco factories, and 1.448 distilleries. United States exports to Mexico in 1910 amounted to $51,000,000, and in 1911 they dropped to $53,000,000. Other nations' trade was nearly as great and had been affected but slightly by the war. Exports from Mexico to other countries reached $138,000,000 in 1910 and $145,000,000 in 1911.

Host. Chief Klein states that he nearly completed his inspection work and that he is endeavoring to conform with the provisions of the statute which burdens him with a great amount of clerical work. The law requires two inspections a year of all buildings in the city, and two additional inspections of the business district.

BASKETBALL SEASON

Another effort will be made to diamond as well as the gridiron. The bring a stop to the writing of articles by players, according to a recent statement of Ban Johnson, the prominent American league executive. The bitter comment that was directed in that direction last summer doesn't seem to have achieved all that it might have and Ban is determined to discourage forever and aye all the player-hack writers. Boiling the pot is all well and good and avarice and the love of gold is as much to be expected among ball players as anywhere else. But it seems to be pretable to the pretable of the player of the passes and two of them for touchdown, barely missing a fourth for which he jumped well into the air, played center on the ball team last spring. His remarkable speed on the bases and his uncerting judgment of the fless were features of the West Point games last season, his manner of getting down the field in a flash and getting under a pass made all beholders exclaim. There is nothing a punt in the arms and in grabbing a pass in full flight in the air and the baseball training of some of the gridiron stars has meant a great many gains on passes for their teams in the fal.

Club owners and managers are beginning to free the province of the managers are beginning to free the province of the managers are beginning a pass that the matter will come in for grabbing a base in full flight in the of a player signing his name to that which he could never have written has gone about far enough. Johnson says that the matter will come in for a round of discussion at the next meeting of the national commission.

The English tennis devotees are admitting that the American players who performed there last summer and managed to cop off the Davis cup are very competent little racquet wielders. The English at one time or another have been said to be poor sports and unwilling to admit the superiority of those who humble them. This has been rumored particularly at the time of Olympic games. Depreciating the opposition has appeared to be the best thing they do. But in their recent loss of the Davis cup the American players they have accepted defeat with a most charming grace. The annual report of the English Tennis Association contains a very pretty eulogy of the American players who have had no professional training is a great help in the game as it's being played today. The development of the forward pass, now one of the gracest ground gainers of the pigskin pastime, has brought a demand for the ability to throw and catch that is frequently met by a player who shines on the

THE THEME

ROMANCE blended with the thrill of danger and doubt; loyalty, emphasized by surrounding treachery and intrigue; the impulse of daring and the ces tasy of hazard; the tense strugalso of musard; the tense strug-gle of souls in combat; the bat-tle between desire and denial; reckless ambition and the mis-ery of its climax; the power of good and the force of evil; the woe and war of hearts; the triuniph of duty over vice, hate, and even love; and throughout all the conflict of emotions and events the sympathetic influence of a woman's tenderness; and Fate—Fate and a woman's heart, a woman's heart and its hunger — these combine the thrilling theme of "The Prisoner of Zenda" the tale of a man who was a king, and a king who was a man!

FILMS VIUIDLY TELL 'PRISONER OF ZENDA' STORY

By ZIT

"The Prisoner of Zenda," with James K. Hackett in the double role of the true and the false king of the fanciful Ruritania, containing all the thrills of the original drama, was produced yesterday afternoon in motion pictures by the Famous Players' Film Company at a private view in the Lyceum Theatre. The production will shortly be opened to the public, and it is safe to predict that it will be one of the biggest of all hits in the history of the film play.

It was a fit coincidence that "The Prisoner of Zenda," originally made famous by Mr.
Hackett at the old Lyceum Theater on Fourth avenue and Twenty-fourth street, under the management of Daniel Frohman. should have had its initial pre-sentation in Mr. Frohman's new Lyceum Theatre. It was under his direction that the films were taken.

Edwin S. Porter, technical director of the Famous Players' Company, and Adolph Zukor, its president all had their share in making this series of reels the unqualified success it has proved to be

In a little talk to the audience Mr. Frohman expressed his views of the field of the motion picture and of what it would do toward preserving the art of the great actors of the day.

Vividly Tells Story. In vivid fashion the films tell the story of Rudolph Rassendyll, a young Englishman in whose veins flows the same blood as that of his relative Rudolf, King of Ruritania. This has resulted in a startling physical resemblance between the two.

Duke Michael, a cousin of the King, known as "Black Michael." is plotting to secure the throne for himself and marry the Princess Flavia. Rassendyll who, finding the hotels of Strelsau, the capital, overcrowded due to the coming coronation has ordered lodgings at an inn in the village of Zenda. He goes to Ruritania to see his distant cousin crowned. But "Black Michael" has drugged the King and imprisoned him in a dungeon at Zenda. His loyal followers persuade Rassendyll to accept the crown temporarily to thwart "Black Michael." The latter is suddenly confronted and confused by the presence of Rassendyll, whose resemblance to the King deceives his ambassadors and ministers, and who is readily accepted as the Royal Rudolph.

instantly Falls in Love. In the meantime Rassendyll meets the Princess Flavia, who immediately observes a subtle contrast in his sturdy, wholesome, attractive qualities from the selfish and self-indulgent proclivities of the King. She forces herself to realize that the real King has undergone a great change in the last few days. Gradually she learns to love him -and Rudolph falls instantly in love with the gentle Flavia.

From that moment a series of thrilling plots and counterplots follow each other in rapid and stirring sequence. The attempt of Michael and his men to kill the King the entrance of Rassen dyll into the dungeon at Zenda where he finds the Royal Rudolph in a state of mental agony and physical collapse, the wounding of Rassendyll through treachery, the killing of "Black Michael," are told in a series of lucid and effective tableaux. The final scene between Ras-sendyll and the Princess Flavia is dominated by a gentle touch of sentiment mingled with pathetic hopelessness, when Rudolph tells her he is not the King. They part because "love is not all," ... / ...

Roy Worthington Appointed Special Policeman, Puts Machine in Shape and Goes on Duty Today.

The city's two hundred dollar motorcycle which has been standing unused in the basement of the city half for a month or more, was oiled and put in condition for service today by special officer Roy Worthington, who has been appointed motorcycle patrolman, subject to call today. The preparation of the motorcycle for service followed the instructions to the police department from the lire and police commission to put an immediate stop to speeding on the Janesville thoroughfares. A special officer will be needed to operate the machine as it is evident Chief Ransom does not think it would be advisable to take any of the patrolmen.

M'REYNOLDS SILENT ON TRUST PROBLEMS

FEDERAL ATTORNEY GENERAL RECOMMENDS FEW CHANGES IN LEGISLATION.

MAKES FIRST REPORT

Opposes Court Decrees in Anti-Trust Suits Where Combination Is Dissolved Into Parts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Dec. 9.—Attorney General McReynolds in his first report as head of the law department of the government submitted to Congress today, makes few recommendations for legislation. The changes he urges have more to do with the machinery of courts than with the fabric of the law

On an anti-trust legislative program the Attorney General was silent. He asked Congress for no amendment to the Sherman act, the rod his depart ment uses to bring trusts to terms and he points out no fault in its oper ture, and that undoubtedly will embody some of the attorney general's views.

Attorney General McReynolds made it clear, however, that so long as he was head of the department he would oppose court decrees in anti-trust suits where the combination was dissolved into parts under the control of the same stockholders. That plan, adopted in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, he calls a "fundamental defect" and later adds in the same connection "my fixed purpose to oppose any plan of dissolution which would leave the separate parts of the unlawful combination under the control of the same set of men."

The attorney general offers a novel solution of the problem of superannuated federal judges. Such judges under the constitution hold office during good behavior although they may retire at the age of seventy after ten years service.

"I suggest" says the attorney general, "an act providing that when any judge below the Supreme Court fails to avail himself of the priviledge of retiring now granted by law, that the president be required, with the advice and consent of the senate, to appoint another judge who shall preside over the affairs of the court and have precedence over the older one. This will insure at all times the presence of a judge sufficiently active to discharge promptly and adequately the duties of the court."

Mr. McReynolds suggests that clerks of the United States courts should be appointed for specified terms and subject to removal by the president for cause and asks that programment. and bowels need a cleaning at once. When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a teather than the control of the cold.

Look Mother! See if the tongue is spoonful and in just a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting lood, clogged in the bowels, passes out of the system and you have a, well and playful child again.

Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Last summer a beautiful girl of sixteen drifted into New York and tried to make her living as an artist's model. This idea that a busy wife and mother ought to be ready to drop everything and spend her evening making things pleasant for 'himself' is as common as it is absurd. Suppose, in the first place, she were free to do it (which no woman who is nursemaid, cook, waitress, seamstress and general houseworker possibly can do.), even so, why should she. The chances are that she has worked every bit as hard as be and at more monotonous work. Why shouldn't he exert himself to amuse her? That would be just as reasonable, waiters of fact she is a product of a small upper class and not half so common as the woman in the humbler home whose husband wants to keep his poor monotory-maddened wife cooped up within the four walls of her home seven evenings a week, and who furthermore expect to look pleasant and exert herself to make him happy by way of recreation. Did you ever hear the expression "KHH"? It means "Keep Him now seven evenings a week, and who furthermore expect to my single of mine who was calling with her husband ended the call very abruptly one evening. Afterwards she apologized for hor radeness. "I knew Arthur would be cross if we didn't catch that car," she said. That little incident is typical of the attitude of constant anxious watchfulness, of willingness to sacrifice anything to placate his lordship, which many women take toward their husbands.

To my mind all these matters should be compromised. Each should be a constant and a hust on him.

The only right basis of happiness in married life is reasonableness and justice, and the husband who expects this is not reasonable or just.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthur stastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.
